DIAGNOSIS OF TUBERCULOSIS.

Slighter Symptom is Now Recognized as Telltale.

To the casual observer it may seem strange that physicians often find it so difficult to determine whether a patient is or is not suffering from consumption. The cough, the emaciation, the hectic fever and the night sweats seem to be sufficiently characteristic of the disease to render its recognition easy, even to the non-medical person. And so, indeed, it is ordinarily in these advanced stages but it is very different at the beginning. Everyone knows that the earlier treatment is begun, the more likely it is to be successful. It is extremely important, therefore, to be able to detect the very beginning of consumption while yet the person is apparently in almost perfect health—and here lies the difficulty.

If there is no cough, no hectic flush, no undue perspiration at night, and if examination of the expectorated matters does not show the presence of the tubercle-bacilli, the only departure from health being perhaps a tendency to fever after exercise, some loss of flesh and a rather rapid pulse, the experienced physician may suspect a beginning of tuberculosis, but he would be rash to assert it as a fact.

Within a year or so several new methods of detecting the disease in its incipient stage have been devised, and one at least promises to be of great practical utility. These methods all consist in the use of tuberculin, but they differ in the mode of application of this substance. It has been known for years that the injection of tuberculin will be followed, if the subject is tuberculous, by symptoms of "reaction" that is, by fever, headache, pains in the bones, and other signs of malaise. But this method has never found favor among physicians generally, because of the belief that it is dangerous. It was very dangerous as formerly used; large doses were injected and the reaction that followed was at times very severe, and in certain cases it was known to have rekindled the disease in persons in whom it had become quiescent, and who were practically cured. It was also feared by some that the disease might be caused in one of the weak resisting powers by inoculation with the tuberculin. These dangers do not, however, exist, now that the substance is used in very small doses, and in a form containing, as it does only a glycerin extract of the tubercle-bacilli, and never the bacilli themselves. Nevertheless, other more simple methods have now been devised, and are used in preference to the injections of former days. Three methods will be described in a future article.—From Youth's Companion.

EX-SENATOR STEWART DEAD.

He Was a Picturesque Figure at the Capital for Years.

Washington, April 24.—Former United States Senator William Morris Stewart of Nevada died at the Georgetown hospital here yesterday, following an operation. The body will be taken to Nevada at once.

Mr. Stewart had been at the hospital since March 30. On March 31 he underwent an operation, the nature of which the physicians have not made public. About a week ago his condition became worse, and he sank steadily until yesterday morning, when at 7:05 o'clock he passed away.

Ex-Senator Stewart's career, if fully told, would read almost like a fairy tale. Born in Lyons, Wayne county, New York, in 1827, and accompanying his parents to Ohio, he worked as farm-hand, cattle driver, school teacher, miner, lawyer, and legislator. In 1849 he went to California. In 1854 he was appointed attorney general of California, removed to Virginia City, Nev., in 1860, and became a member of the constitutional convention in 1863, and took up his place in the United States Senate for the first time in 1864. He was re-elected senator in 1869, 1875, 1883 and 1889, his last term of service in the Senate expiring in 1905.

For more than 30 years of his life Mr. Stewart was many times a millionaire. In 1885, classed with the very rich men of the Senate, he built "Stewart Castle," the first of the palatial residences in the West end of Washington. Later, for a time, he conducted a model dairy farm in Virginia, but on the expiration of his term in the Senate returned to the practice of law in Nevada.

Speaks for Liberals.

Lady Granard, Formerly Miss Mills, Has Opened a British Bazaar.

London, April 24.—Lady Granard, who was formerly Miss Beatrice Mills of New York, made her first public appearance on the platform in England Thursday, when she opened a bazaar in aid of the Hornsey Liberal association. Lady Granard congratulated the organizers on the charming pageant and the precision and decision shown by the children in the Morris dance. She said the highest credit was due to the bazaar workers, who had arranged and provided a stock for each beautiful stall lady. She went on to explain that the object of the bazaar was to raise funds to contest the next election in Hornsey, and she assured the audience that, although a severe fight was anticipated, the result would be a gratification to "our party."

TRIBUTE TO SHAKESPEARE.

Whitlaw Reid Attends the Poet's 345th Anniversary.

Stratford-on-the-Avon, April 24.—The 345th anniversary of the birth of William Shakespeare was celebrated here yesterday on an unusually elaborate scale. The city was lavishly decorated and it was crowded with visitors. One of the principal features of the ceremonies was the unfurling of forty-one national flags, representing together the countries which especially admire the poet. Whitlaw Reid, the American ambassador, unfurled the Stars and Stripes. There was a floral procession to the church in which all the delegations took part, each carrying wreaths of flowers which were subsequently placed upon the tomb of the poet. Mr. Reid laid on the tomb a wreath sent by The Players of New York.

Words to Freeze the Soul.

"Your son has consumption. His case is hopeless." These appalling words were spoken to Geo. E. Blevens, a leading merchant of Springfield, N. C., by two expert doctors—one a lung specialist. Then was shown the wonderful power of Dr. King's New Discovery. "After three weeks," writes Mr. Blevens, "he was as well as ever. I would not take all the money in the world for what it did for my boy." Infallible for coughs and colds, it's the safest, surest cure of desperate lung diseases on earth. 50c and $1.00 at Red Cross Pharmacy. Guarantee satisfaction. Trial bottle free.

DELIVERY DAY

Following the custom of some of the leading implement dealers in the south and west, I have decided to ask my customers who have given orders for farm machinery, to come after their goods April 23rd and 24th, at which time I will be prepared to give them of the largest and most complete stock of Farm Machinery ever shown in Barre. It will pay every farmer in Washington County to come here one or both of these days and see the machinery, whether he wants to buy or not. Factory representatives from different manufacturers will be here to show their goods, but they are all harmless and will not tear your clothes if you do not buy a thing. The curious visitor and the determined purchaser are alike welcome.
